Every money number in this book is HERE's real rate at the time of writing:
tickets cost about 1 cent each to buy, every earned ticket cashes out at half a cent,
2,000 earned tickets = $10, paid to your bank through Stripe.
Rates can change. The rate on your Tickets page is the one that counts.

No promise in this book says you WILL make a set amount.
The RATE is guaranteed. The AMOUNT is up to your work and your people.

For every creator, artist, gamer, seller, and regular person who was told they had to be famous first to get paid.

On HERE, you don't.

Read This First — The Honest Truth

“The rate is guaranteed. The amount is up to you.”

Most apps make you famous first, then maybe they pay you. YouTube wants 1,000 subscribers and thousands of watch hours before you see one dollar. Other apps want 1,000 followers before you can even go live and earn.

HERE flips that. You can earn on day one. No follower minimum. No partner program to beg into. If one person gifts you, you earned real money. That is the whole idea of this book, in one line.

Now the honest part, because this book does not lie to you: HERE is still growing. The money machine is built and it really pays — real people have already cashed out to their bank and are on the public Wall of Paid. But the crowd is still being built. So this book will never tell you 'post once and get rich.' It tells you the real plays that work: bring your people, give them a reason to gift, and do it over and over.

Here is what you will learn: how the money pipe works, in plain words. How content creators make money. How artists make money with their music. How pages and shops make money. How a regular user — not a creator at all — gifts a page, and how that same regular user can start earning too. And how a $30 capture card — the one tool this book tells gamers to buy for themselves — helps you stream clean and clear.

Every chapter is short. Every chapter ends with THE PLAY — the exact steps to do. If you only do the plays, you did the book.

THE PLAY: Open HERE. Go to your Tickets page. Look at your two wallets — tickets you can spend, and tickets you earned. That second wallet is where this whole book is headed.

Chapter 1 — The Money Pipe

“Fan buys tickets. Fan gifts tickets. You cash out dollars.”

Everything on HERE runs on one simple pipe. Learn the pipe and you understand every dollar on the app.

Step 1: A fan buys Live Tickets with a real card. The packs are simple: 100 tickets for $0.99, 500 tickets for $4.99, and 1,500 tickets for $13.99. So a ticket costs about one penny to buy.

Step 2: The fan spends those tickets on you — a gift on your live, a gift on your post, a gift on your page, a ticket to get into your live, or paying to unlock your locked content. You do not get the spend tickets. You get EARNED tickets, in a separate wallet, so nobody can mix up play money and real money.

Step 3: Every earned ticket is worth half a cent when you cash out. That means you keep about 50 cents of every fan dollar. Say it plain: a fan spends a dollar on you, about half of it is yours. One 100-ticket gift = 50 cents to you. A whole big pack gifted to you — 1,500 tickets — = $7.50 to you.

Step 4: When your earned wallet hits 2,000 tickets, that is $10, and you can cash out. Link your bank one time through Stripe — that is the same safe system big stores use — and when you are bank-ready, your cash-out pays AUTOMATICALLY. Nobody has to approve you getting your own money. It is your money.

Compare that: $10 cash-out on HERE. YouTube holds you to $100. And on HERE there is proof — the Wall of Paid is a public page that shows real people who really got paid.

One more pipe to know: invite bonus. When somebody YOU invited to HERE earns tickets, HERE mints an extra 10% on top and puts it in YOUR earned wallet. It never comes out of their money. Their dollar stays whole. Yours grows because you brought a worker to the platform.

THE PLAY: Say the pipe out loud until you own it: Tickets in. Gifts to me. Earned tickets up. 2,000 = $10. Bank gets paid. Then teach it to one other person today — a creator who can explain the pipe can sell the pipe.

Chapter 2 — Turn On Creator Mode

Before you can earn, flip one switch: Creator Mode. Go to Settings and turn on Creator Mode. That one tap is what puts the Gift button on your profile and your pages, and unlocks the tools that sell locked content.

With Creator Mode OFF, you are a regular user. You can post, watch, gift other people, and have fun — but your page cannot take gifts. With Creator Mode ON, your page can get paid. It is that simple, and a lot of new creators miss their first gifts just because the switch was off.

Next, follow the First $10 Quest. It lives on your Earnings and Tickets pages and it is a checklist built to walk you to your first cash-out: turn on Creator Mode, add your picture, make your first post, do your first live, get your first gift, link your bank, cash out your first $10. Do not guess your way there. Check the boxes in order.

Set a tip goal on your profile too. Pick a number — your first $10 is a perfect first goal. The bar shows on your page and fills up with every gift, from lives, posts, and pages. People gift more when they can SEE the goal they are helping you hit. A goal with no bar is a wish. A goal with a bar is a game your fans play with you.

Last thing in this chapter, and do it before you need the money: link your bank early. Go to your Tickets page and do the one-time 'Set up bank payouts' step with Stripe. It takes a few minutes. If you wait until you are sitting on $10, you just added days between you and your money for no reason.

THE PLAY: 1) Settings — Creator Mode ON. 2) Tickets page — link your bank now. 3) Profile — set your tip goal to $10. Three taps-and-types, and you are officially in business.

Chapter 3 — Content Creators: Seven Ways To Get Paid

“Do not depend on one door. HERE gives you seven.”

A creator who only earns one way starves when that one way slows down. On HERE you have seven doors, and the strong creators use three or four at the same time.

DOOR 1 — LIVE GIFTS. Go live on your Platform. While you are live, viewers send gifts from the gift catalog. Every gift lands in your earned wallet at the real rate. Lives are the fastest door because the gifting happens in the moment, while people are feeling it.

DOOR 2 — POST AND PEEP GIFTS. Every post you make as a creator carries a Gift button. A fan who missed your live can still gift the post they loved at 2 in the morning. Your old posts keep working while you sleep.

DOOR 3 — PAGE GIFTS. Your profile page and your Pages can take gifts too — covered full in Chapter 6. Some fans do not want a show. They just believe in YOU and want to bless the page. Let them.

DOOR 4 — TICKET-DOOR LIVES. Charge tickets to get into a special live. A class, a concert, a private show, a first-listen party. Fans pay the door in tickets, the door money lands in your earned wallet. Free lives build the crowd. Ticket doors pay you for the special stuff.

DOOR 5 — LOCKED CONTENT. Lock a post, a photo, a video, or even a message in someone's inbox, at a ticket price you set. Fans pay to unlock it, and once they pay, it is theirs forever. Behind-the-scenes clips, tutorials, exclusive drops, shout-out videos — if it is special, it can be locked. Honest warning: locking everything kills your free crowd. Lock the treasure, give away the welcome.

DOOR 6 — LIVE SELLING AND YOUR SHOP. Sell real things: on live, in the Market, and in your profile shop and page shop. A gift is a fan saying 'I support you.' A sale is a customer saying 'I want that.' You want both kinds of people.

DOOR 7 — THE INVITE BONUS. From Chapter 1: invite earners, and HERE mints you 10% on top of what they earn, forever, at no cost to them. Ten good creators invited by you can quietly become your eighth, ninth, and tenth paycheck.

Notice what is NOT a door: likes and views do not pay cash by themselves, on HERE or anywhere honest. Likes and plays are your scoreboard — they prove you are growing and, for artists, they walk you toward a record deal (next chapters). Money rides on gifts, doors, locks, and sales. Chase the doors, watch the scoreboard.

THE PLAY: This week, open three doors on purpose: one live for gifts, one locked post, and send your invite link to five creators. Write down which door paid first. That is your door — push it hardest.

Chapter 4 — Going Live Like A Pro

“People do not gift a screen. They gift a moment.”

Live is where the biggest gift moments happen, so treat your live like a show, even if your 'stage' is your kitchen table.

Name your Platform and pick your spot like you mean it. Give your live a clear title that says what happens inside — 'Friday Night Freestyle,' 'Cook With Me,' 'Game Night: Winner Stays On.' People join a promise, not a blank screen. Schedule your big shows ahead of time on the Shows page, so fans can hit Remind Me and get told when you start.

Open strong. The first 60 seconds decide who stays. Say who you are, what is about to happen, and what a gift does — 'Every gift tonight fills my $10 goal bar on my page, and top gifter picks the next song.' Now your fans are not just watching. They have a job and a scoreboard.

Work the room while you are live. Read names out loud. Thank every gifter by name, right when it happens — the gift flies across the screen for a reason. Run small games: top gifter chooses, gift goals unlock the next segment, a ticket-door after-party for your real ones. And remember guests can now find a public live from a shared link even before they join HERE — so share your live link OUTSIDE the app every single time. Your next fan is not on HERE yet.

Close with the next date. Never end a live with 'bye.' End it with 'Same time Thursday — bring one friend, and if you gifted tonight, your name is on my page in the Recent Gifts strip.' People come back to appointments. They forget about random streams.

About levels: as gifts land on your lives, you climb the streamer levels, and as you gift others, you climb the gifter ranks. Levels do not pay by themselves, but they are proof of work that other users can see — and on a young platform, visible proof is worth money.

THE PLAY: Schedule one show this week. Share the link in three places outside HERE. Open by naming your gift goal out loud. Thank every gifter by name. Close by announcing the next show. That is a pro live.

Chapter 5 — Artists: Make Money With Your Music

“One gift on a song can beat a hundred streams somewhere else.”

Artists, hear the math first, because the math is why you are here. On the big streaming apps, one play pays you a tiny piece of a penny — you need thousands and thousands of plays to see lunch money. On HERE, fans gift your TRACKS with tickets. One 100-ticket gift on your song = 50 cents to you. That one gift can be worth more than a hundred streams somewhere else. Your fans are not an algorithm. They are people who can pay you on purpose.

Here is the artist setup. Turn on Creator Mode. Turn on Artist Mode in Settings and apply for the Verified Artist badge — your gold-record plaque. One application at a time, and the owner reviews it. Post your music — only music you own the rights to. Read that again: track gifts are for YOUR tracks, with YOUR rights. No gifting other people's songs for money.

Your scoreboard is plays plus likes. Fans can like your tracks (you cannot like your own — the app will tell you no, out loud) and gift your tracks. Plays and likes do not print cash — gifts do — but plays and likes are the road. At 40,000 plays, your page gets flagged CONTRACT-READY. That is not a small thing. That flag is the door to THE LABEL.

THE LABEL is HERE's own independent record label, built inside the app. If you sign, here is the deal in plain words, the same words in the contract at /artist/contract: you keep 100% of your music rights. Your songs stay yours. You earn at the same 50-cents-on-the-fan-dollar gift rate. At cash-out, signed artists pay a 3% label fee — that fee goes into the Artist Fund that markets the label's artists. Either side can end the deal at any time, and ending it NEVER touches your wallet. Money you earned is money you keep, signed or not.

Before you sign anything — this book's honest advice — read every page, and it is smart to have a lawyer look once before the first real signing. A real label is not scared of you reading the contract. This book telling you that is how you know this one means it.

How artists actually get the gifts: drop a song, then go live and perform it. Put the new track in your posts with Playbox so people hear it while they scroll. Tell the story of the song — where you wrote it, what it cost you. Fans gift STORIES with a song attached, way more than they gift a bare file. And use the tools in this book: film your sessions, stream your studio nights, and let a capture card (Chapter 8) bring your console and camera feeds in clean when you game or react with fans between drops.

THE PLAY: 1) Creator Mode + Artist Mode ON, apply for Verified Artist. 2) Post ONE track you own, with its story. 3) Go live this week and perform it. 4) Ask for track gifts by name: 'Gift the song if it hit you.' Vague artists starve. Specific artists eat.

Chapter 6 — Pages, Shops, And Businesses

This chapter is for the page owners, the sellers, the churches, the teams, the brands — and for every regular user who wants to understand how gifting a page works, because your favorite page is somebody's business.

HOW PAGE GIFTS WORK, for the giver: you visit a page (or a creator's profile), you see the Gift button, you pick a gift from the same catalog used on lives, and you send it. The gift pops on your screen, the page owner gets a bell notification right then, and the gift shows in the Recent Gifts strip on their page for everyone to see. The money lands in the PAGE OWNER's earned wallet — the same wallet as their live money — at the same rate: about half of every fan dollar, cash out at $10 to their bank.

HOW PAGE GIFTS WORK, for the owner: your page can only take gifts if YOUR Creator Mode is on. Off means no button and no gifts — the app will refuse them, politely, until you flip the switch. There is no self-gifting (you cannot pay yourself), people you block cannot gift you, and big gifts ask the sender to tap twice, so nobody sends $50 by fat-finger accident. That is on purpose. Clean money only.

WHY A REGULAR USER GIFTS A PAGE: because the page gives them something real — the barber who posts openings, the church that streams Sunday, the local team, the artist, the cause. A gift on a page says 'keep doing this, in my neighborhood, for my people' louder than a like ever will. And the giver is not left out of the money story: gifters climb the gifter ranks, show up on Top Boards, and appear in that page's Recent Gifts — real recognition, seen by the whole page.

NOW SELL SOMETHING. Pages and profiles have SHOPS. List what you sell in your page shop and your profile shop. Push your best listing in the Market and boost it — a boost burns 100 tickets and puts your listing at the front, featured, for 7 days. Sell live, too: show the product on your Platform, let people claim it, and let the Market ride your live crowd.

FOR BUSINESSES WITH A BUDGET: ads on HERE are flat and simple — $10 for 7 days. No auction, no bidding war with a giant company, no mystery bill. A small business can actually afford to be seen here. And HERE Plus ($4.99 a month) is for power users — bigger uploads and the Plus badge — worth it if you post a lot of video for your business.

Chapter 7 — Regular Users: You Are Not Left Out

“You do not need a stage to earn. You need one good door.”

Maybe you are not a 'creator.' You do not sing, you do not stream games, you just like it HERE. This chapter is yours, because regular users make money on HERE too — four honest ways.

WAY 1 — SELL IN THE MARKET. Everybody has something: shoes that do not fit, a console you beat, a skill you can do this weekend. List it. Boost it for 100 tickets if you want the front of the line. A sale is money, full stop.

WAY 2 — THE INVITE BONUS. Your invite link is a money tool, not just a share button. When people you invited start EARNING — gifts on their lives, posts, pages, ticket doors, locked content — HERE mints you 10% on top, into your earned wallet, without taking one ticket from them. Invite workers, not just watchers. While the Invite Race is running (October 30 to November 15, 2026), there is even a $100 cash prize for the most QUALIFIED invites — qualified means the person you brought actually used HERE: posted, joined a live, or moved tickets. Raw signups that never do anything do not count for money. Real people doing real things count.

WAY 3 — BECOME A SMALL CREATOR BY ACCIDENT. A lot of earners started as regular users who posted one thing people loved — a cooking live, a church clip, a funny Peep, a fix-it video. Flip on Creator Mode anyway (Chapter 2). It costs you nothing, your page can suddenly take gifts, and the day a post pops, you are already set up to get paid instead of just getting liked.

WAY 4 — GIFT SMART AND GET SEEN. Gifting is spending, not earning — this book will not pretend otherwise. But gifters build a NAME: ranks, Top Boards, Recent Gifts strips on big pages. On a young platform, a known name is an asset. Creators remember their gifters, shout them out, bring them up on live, and send their own crowds their way. Many a creator's first fans were people they first met as supporters.

And one protection for every user: gifting uses tickets you bought on purpose, big gifts need a second confirming tap, and you can never gift yourself or be gifted by someone you blocked. Spend what you mean to spend, on people you mean to support.

THE PLAY: Copy your invite link from the home screen strip. Send it to three people who DO things — a singer, a seller, a streamer — not just three people who scroll. Then list ONE item in the Market today.

Chapter 8 — The $30 Capture Card: Buy Your Own, The Right Way

“A capture card lets your game console and camera talk to your stream.”

This book does NOT come with a capture card, and it does not pretend to. The card is a tool you buy for yourself, for around $30, only if you need it — here is what it is, in plain words, which ones to buy, and who should NOT bother, because this book sells you nothing you do not need.

WHAT IT IS: A capture card is a small plug that takes the picture from an HDMI source — a PlayStation, an Xbox, a Switch, a camera — and feeds it into a computer over USB, so your streaming or recording program can show it, clean and full-screen. Without one, gamers point a phone at a TV and the picture looks cheap. With one, your gameplay IS the picture.

WHICH ONE TO BUY: In this class, three names keep showing up with real reviews behind them — the Guermok 4K USB 3.0 card (about $19), the Rybozen 1080p60 card (about $28), and the Acer USB 3.0 card (under $30). Any of those three, bought from a store with a real return policy, is a safe first card. Do not buy the cheapest no-name card on the internet to save five dollars — a card nobody has reviewed is a gamble, not a deal. WHAT THE $30 CLASS OF CARD REALLY DOES: Cards in this class capture 1080p — full HD — at up to 60 frames per second, with 4K pass-through to your TV on the better models, plug-and-play, no drivers. That is real, and for a new streamer it is enough to look professional. Now the honest limits, because cheap cards have them: some budget cards add a little lag, so play on the TV pass-through, not the computer preview. Some have audio that drifts on very long streams — restart the source in your program if voices slip. And a $30 card is a STARTER card. Pros pay $150 and up for a reason. This one gets you in the game today, for the price of two ticket packs.

WHO NEEDS IT: console gamers who stream or record. Camera creators who want their real camera's clean HDMI picture instead of a grainy laptop cam. Anyone in the bundle who plays games on live — this is your upgrade. WHO DOES NOT: phone-only creators. If your whole show is your phone camera, this card does nothing for you today — gift it to a gamer in your circle and make a friend who owes you a shout-out.

SETUP IN FIVE STEPS: 1) HDMI cable OUT of your console or camera, INTO the card. 2) If your card has an HDMI out, run a second cable from the card to your TV — you play looking at the TV. 3) USB cable from the card into your computer. 4) Open your streaming/recording program (OBS is free) and add the card as a 'Video Capture Device.' Your gameplay appears. 5) For HERE: stream and record your sessions, clip your best moments, and post them as Peeps and posts with gift buttons on them — and when you go live on HERE from your phone, use your clips to pull your crowd in. The card makes the content. HERE makes the content pay.

Keep the receipt and test it the day it arrives, on YOUR console and YOUR computer, inside the return window. Budget hardware varies — a card that works on day one, tested by you, is worth ten spec sheets. That return window is exactly why you buy your own from a real store instead of getting a mystery card packed in a box: your card, your store, your warranty, your money back if it fails.

THE PLAY: Unbox it today, not 'one day.' Run the five steps, record a 60-second test, and post that test clip on HERE with a caption naming your first game night. First clip posted beats perfect setup planned.

Chapter 9 — Cash Out: Getting The Money To Your Bank

“Earned is good. Paid is the proof.”

This is the chapter the whole book points at. Cashing out on HERE is four steps, and you already did step one if you followed Chapter 2.

STEP 1 — LINK YOUR BANK, ONE TIME. Tickets page, 'Set up bank payouts,' through Stripe. You give Stripe your bank info — HERE never sees your bank numbers. That is on purpose.

STEP 2 — HIT 2,000 EARNED TICKETS. That is $10. Your Earnings page breaks down where every ticket came from — lives, posts and Peeps, page gifts, ticket doors, locked content, track gifts, invite bonuses — so you can see which of your doors is actually paying you and push that door harder.

STEP 3 — CASH OUT. Hit the cash-out button on your Tickets page. If you are bank-ready, the payment fires AUTOMATICALLY — no owner approval sitting on your money, because it is YOUR money. If your balance is short or something needs a look, it queues and heals itself — it does not vanish.

STEP 4 — GET PAID, THEN SHOW THE WORLD. Money lands in your bank (Stripe payouts usually take about two business days). Then get your 'I got paid' card and post it. Your payout joins the Wall of Paid — the public page of real people HERE has paid. That wall is how the next hundred creators decide to believe. Your cash-out is not just your money. It is the platform's proof, and your name on it is advertising you did not pay for.

If you are a signed Label artist, one extra line applies: your 3% label fee comes out at cash-out and goes to the Artist Fund, exactly like the contract says — and if a cash-out with a fee is ever declined by the owner side, the tickets AND the fee come back to you in full.

THE PLAY: If your bank is not linked, link it before you close this book. If you are over $10 earned and have not cashed out, cash out today and post your paid card. Money you show beats money you describe.

Chapter 10 — Your First 7 Days: The Money Week

“Seven days. Seven moves. First $10 in sight.”

DAY 1 — SET UP. Creator Mode on. Bank linked. Tip goal set to $10. Profile picture and a bio that says what you DO in one line.

DAY 2 — POST WITH A DOOR. Post your best thing — a song, a clip, a photo, a story — and tell people the Gift button is live on it. Pin your invite link in your other apps.

DAY 3 — FIRST LIVE. 30 minutes minimum. Name your goal out loud. Thank gifters by name. Share the live link in three outside places. Announce Day 5 before you end.

DAY 4 — LOCK ONE TREASURE. One locked post or locked inbox drop — your best behind-the-scenes, your tutorial, your exclusive. Price it low. Your first unlock matters more than a big price nobody pays.

DAY 5 — SECOND LIVE, WITH A GUEST. Bring one friend up on your Platform. Two faces double the energy and double the crowds — theirs and yours. Run a ticket-door after-party if your crowd is warmed up.

DAY 6 — PAGES AND PEOPLE. Gift one page you love (small is fine) and show up in its Recent Gifts. Post in three pages' comments like a real neighbor. Invite five DOERS with your link and tell them the invite-bonus truth: they keep all theirs, you get 10% minted on top.

DAY 7 — COUNT AND POST THE COUNT. Earnings page: which door paid? Post the honest number — even if it is $1.50 — with the words 'Day 7. First $10 loading.' Real numbers from real people build this platform faster than any ad. Then set the tip goal to the NEXT $10 and run the week again, pushing the door that paid.

THE PLAY: Start Day 1 today, not Monday. A week that starts today ends with proof. A week that starts 'soon' ends with a story about soon.

Chapter 11 — The Rules That Keep You Paid

“Clean money is the only money that lasts.”

Short chapter, hard rules. Break these and you do not get rich — you get removed.

RULE 1 — YOUR RIGHTS ONLY. Artists: gift-earning tracks must be music you own. Creators: locked content must be yours to sell. Selling other people's work for tickets is theft with extra steps.

RULE 2 — NO FAKE NUMBERS. No buying fake followers, no fake plays, no gifting yourself through side accounts, no games with the numbers. HERE's whole promise is REAL people really getting paid. Fake numbers poison the well everybody drinks from.

RULE 3 — NO PROMISING WHAT THE RATE DOES NOT SAY. When you recruit — and you should recruit — promise the RATE: no follower minimum, about half of every fan dollar, $10 cash-out, auto-pay when bank-ready.

Never promise an AMOUNT. Their amount is their work, just like yours.

RULE 4 — TAXES ARE YOURS. Money you earn on HERE is income, like any other real income. When real money starts landing, keep your payout records (your Earnings page and bank deposits are your paper trail) and talk to a tax person when the numbers get serious.

RULE 5 — RESPECT THE BLOCK AND THE NO. Blocked people cannot gift you, message you, or reach you — that is a feature, use it when you need it, and accept it when it is used on you. A platform where 'no' works is a platform good people stay on.

THE PLAY: Read the five rules to one person you invited. If they still want in after the honest version, you invited the right kind of person.

The Last Page — What You Bought, And The Promise

Here is exactly what you bought, so there is never a question: THIS BOOK — The HERE Play Book, digital edition, $35.99 — the plays, in plain words, yours to keep and re-read. That is the whole purchase. The capture card from Chapter 8 is NOT in the box, because there is no box: it is a $30 tool you buy yourself, from a real store, only if your kind of creating needs it — so your warranty and your return window are in YOUR name. AND HERE ITSELF — free to join, free to earn on, at joincomehere.com. Nobody charged you to join the app. You paid for the knowledge. The app is free.

This book is a play book, not a magic box. It does not make fans. It does not do the lives for you. What it does is remove your best excuse: 'I did not know how.' Now you know. And if your picture looked cheap, Chapter 8 just handed you the $30 fix, in your own name, from a store that has to stand behind it.

The promise of HERE, one last time, in the plainest words in this book: No follower minimum. About half of every fan dollar to the creator. Cash out at $10. Auto-pay to your bank when you are set up. Your rate is guaranteed. Your amount is your work.

Now close the book and open the app. Your first $10 is not going to chase you.

See you HERE.

THE PLAY: Creator Mode ON. Bank linked. Goal set. One post, one live, one invite — today. That is the whole book in one line.

About HERE

HERE is a social platform built and owned by Kendrick Cooley — posts, Peeps, lives and Platforms, pages and shops, a Market, music, dating, and a money system built so regular people and real creators get paid at a fair rate with no follower gate.
